

The Sei Whale

Let's look after our whales and wildlife.

These beautiful creatures need protecting from strife.

Reduce pollution, here's a simple solution,

Throw your litter in the bin and it will be a win-win.

Fly only for essential travel. If you don't, the world will unravel.

Remember stick to this plan and become an environment man.

Once I saw a Sei whale, they are so incredibly rare.

He was swept into shallow water and got stuck there.

I was awe struck, he was as giant as a truck.

He had beached himself.

He was a jam jar stuck on a shelf.

He was huge but he was just baby whale.

When he was stuck on the land he looked like a snail.

He was 9 metres long.

but it wasn't very strong.

He had been separated from his mummy and he was only out of her tummy.

The whale dropped his head,

then I knew he was dead.

Let's look after our whales and wildlife

These beautiful creatures need protecting from strife

Reduce pollution, here's a simple solution

Throw your litter in the bin and it will be a win-win

Fly only for essential travel. If you don't, the world will unravel.

Remember stick to this plan and become an environment man.

By Dan Black P7